

REFLECTION OF PORTFOLIO PRESENTATION

I think that overall, this portfolio went pretty well. In the very beginning, I was only missing a few papers, so I thought that I pretty much had this down. Then, something terrible happened. One day, I was looking for my portfolio folder and it was nowhere to be seen. For about two weeks I searched high and low, in pursuit of my folder and with it, my future. I finally found it on a Friday. What a relief! For the time in between then and my presentation was a breeze. I spent most of the time revising and editing papers. I met with my advisor, and rehearsed my presentation. Finally, the big day came. My portfolio presentation. In the beginning I was sort of off at a rocky start. I made zero eye contact, and I felt as though I was stumbling over every word. But as I got more acquainted with the crowd, I started to get better. By the time I left the presentation, I was pretty confident I had passed.
