

Invitation to the First WAC Faculty Forum

Yes! There is a free lunch!

Whatever discipline you teach or whatever your role here at the college, you are warmly invited to join some of your colleagues for lunch (free) and a discussion of plans to revitalize Writing Across the Curriculum at CSM. Thanks to a generous grant from the Lane Family Charitable Trust, in the fall we will begin planning for a WAC pilot program to be launched next spring. We need your enthusiasm, energy, and creative ideas.

Please join us to eat (free) and to talk about the role of writing in our students' learning.

WAC Faculty Forum: Friday, May 12, 1:15-2:30 p.m., Gallery Room

Please RSVP by Friday, May 5
to Jean Mach

Dave Danielson
Cheryl Gregory
Jean Mach
Anne Stafford

P.S. Would you please take a moment to answer these questions and return them to Jean? Your feedback will help us plan our discussion.

1. If you teach a discipline other than composition, do you assign writing in your classroom? Or, if you teach composition, would you like to help develop strategies to support students writing in other disciplines? (Please include your discipline in your response.)

2. For those in disciplines other than composition, to expand on your answer in #1: If not, why not? If yes, how would you describe the experience? For those teaching composition: Would you like to be included in collegial discussion with teachers in other disciplines?

3. If you are interested in assigning writing, what kind of support would you find helpful?
